

DIVE INTO MARTINIQUE!

Variety is the spice of life, especially when it comes to undersea adventures. The very best scuba destinations entice both novice and experienced divers with abundant marine life, vibrant undersea vistas, unique and historic wrecks; even hints of treasure!

Martinique offers all this and more with 90+ dive sites, no two exactly alike.

Here, giant brown and yellow tube sponges, mix with purple and blue vase sponges and virtually every variety of coral to create a symphony of color in concert with long and winding fringe reefs, oversized rocks, massive walls, and one of the Caribbean's most impressive collection of wrecks.

*In Martinique, no two dive spots are alike;
each is unique in its own way!*

Some 12 wreck sites, born of the 1902 eruption of Mt. Pelée, are found within the harbor of the town of St. Pierre. Martinique's colorful history also highlights the island's most thrilling dive site, world famous Diamond Rock.

This uninhabited hardscrabble islet was captured by the British during the Napoleonic Wars and converted into a man-of-war – the HMS Diamond Rock.

While the British were drawn to the strategic advantages presented by the land atop Diamond Rock, it's the exciting scuba experience below that draws visitors today.

A triangular cave extends beneath Diamond Rock from one side to the next, enabling divers to literally traverse under the islet. The cavern contains prolific quantities and varieties of corals and sea fans, with some divers even finding remnants of Diamond Rock's former British tenants.

Strong currents within the cavern reserve this experience to the very skilled, but for those with the chops it's not to be missed.

Dive conditions in Martinique remain pleasant year-round. Water temperatures range between 80- and 86-degrees Fahrenheit with excellent visibility and abundant sea life.

Taking advantage of all the dive wonders that Martinique has to offer is also easy thanks to the Madinina Pass, an innovative program that provides divers with the freedom to dive virtually anywhere in Martinique for one low price.

Each Madinina Pass dive checkbook contains coupons for three, six or 10 dives. Coupons can be redeemed through 12 PADI-certified dive operators located around the island. Free equipment rental and insurance are also included.
